SUITS Half-Price and Less

Changes in style from Spring to Fall are really insignificant. This is particularly true of tailored costumes, and perhaps the major portion of womankind cares little when her suit was first designed so it is stylish in outline, of good material and accurate in fit-the tailored costume is usually meant for two or three seasons' wear, anyhow. But it is different with us. We like that phrase-"every garment absolutely new"-and when we publish it a week from to-day we mean that it shall be true. Fifty-eight Spring Suits remain to bar such a statement now. Can't you use one of them at the following prices?

At $9.89 we offer you the choice of Tailored Cloth Costumes, the prices of which ranged upward to $30. (Fail arrivals of course excepted.) There are thirty-seven of these, well assorted as to sizes.

At $14.67 you may choose from few of which sold as high as $40. The woman who can be nicely fitted in one of these will have ample reason to congratulate herself.

RUM WAS HIS ENEMY.

Frank M. Lynn Sentenced in the Boone Circuit Court.

Frank M. Lynn, of Indianapolis, was sentenced in the Boone Circuit Court yesterday to the Reformatory under the indeterminate sentence law, on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy of a Lebanon livery firm last July. When the court, after having read the indictment to the prisoner. asked him if he was guilty or not guilty. Lynn, instead of pleading, asked the privilege of being permitted to tell his story The court granted Lynn's request and the latter told the cause of his downfall. He said he was a railroad employe with a good record, except when he became intoxicated; that he had never been accused of any crime other than a few drunken quarrels and fights. His only besetting sin, he said, was love of whisky. It was utterly impossible for him to control his appetite. At the time he committed the theft of the horse and buggy he was drunk and had been for several days. He had no intention of stealing the property, he said, but his mind was in such a condition that he did not know what he was doing. As he told his story the tears came to his eyes and the court and attorneys were affected. The court told Lynn that he could plead ner said that his conscience would permit him to do nothing else than plead

PROMINENT MICHIGAN CITY MEN VISIT THE CITY.

They Are Interested in the Location of a Naval Training Station-Visitors at the Hotels.

"We are going right ahead and try to get the naval reserve training station for Michigan City," remarked Judge H. B. Tuthill at the Grand Hotel yesterday. Judge Tuthill came down from Michigan City in company with Mayor Krueger to talk with Admiral Brown in regard to the station. "We saw the admiral," continued | Sullivan and Greene counties. Judge Tuthill, "and he explained to us that the station the government thinks of building on the great lakes will be similar to a school at Norfolk, Va. It is for the training of petty officers for the navy and will be calculated to attract the attention of the young men of the central West. The navy is wanting good men, and it thought that a station of this kind on one of the great lakes will have a tendency to cause more young men to enlist. In regard to what we have to offer at Michigan City we can furnish a harbor that is clear of | company will be conducted at Winchester. ice from five to seven weeks longer each season than any port on the lakes, including the ports on the south line of Lake Erie. We have a harbor sixteen feet deep, from 150 to 200 feet wide and a mile and a quarter in length. The people of Michigan City are in earnest about this matter and we are doing everything we can to get the station. We have been assured by the commission appointed to select a place for the station that the commission will visit Michigan City and investigate our claim."

In this venture Mr. the cause of the initiative and the referendum, is at the Grand Hotel. Mr. Ponfery is in the city on private business. Last night he discussed the advance of the initiative and referendum movement.

"Direct registration is growing rapidly in popular favor," he said. "Oregon has adopted a constitutional amendment providing for the operation of the initiative and the referendum, Utah adopted it in 1899 and South Dakota in 1898. It is already in the charters of the cities of San Francisco and Seattle, and in those of Minneapolis, Detroit and Nashville in so far as voting on franchises is concerned. It used with satisfaction to the people in Ontario, Canada, and in many States of the

"As to its advantages there can be no question. It places the responsibility for all acts upon the shoulders of the people, where the responsibility really belongs. It nsures publicity in all matters affecting the initiative and the referendum is in vogue. It puts it out of the power of city councils to accept bribes for awarding valuable contracts, since councils manifestly would be unable to deliver 'the goods.' If there had been in St. Louis such a thing as direct registration there would now be no such scandals as that with which the citizens of the Missouri metropolis have to deal.

"Local option is but an application of direct registration, and the operation of local option has been sufficiently satisfacory when given a fair trial to show that broader applications would be a splendid thing for the people "My opinion is that a very few years will ee the question of direct registration a burning issue in all elections, national as well as state and local.

"The streets of Marion on Saturday and Monday are like Indianapolis's principal streets on a holiday," remarked George Osborn, of Marion, who was at the Hotel English yesterday. "I think a good deal playing lately is due to the discovery of oil in Grant county. Parts of the county are actually thick with oil wells. The failure of gas in Grant county would not hurt our town nearly so bad now as it would eighteen months ago, or before we began to get oil. Of course we expect gas to fail some day, but we are not alarmed about the failure of the oil wells. If gas should fail some of our factories would probably leave, but we would keep the most of them and Marion would continue to improve."

Judge Brownlee in Town.

Judge Hiram Brownlee, of Marion, was in Indianapolis yesterday and took lunch at the Columbia Club. He expects to resign his place on the Superior Bench at Marion within a few weeks. His term expires in December, but he desires to be footloose before that time. Judge Brownlee will take part in the campaign this fall and this is one reason why he wishes to retire from the bench before the expiration of his term of office. "There isn't much politics being talked in our county," he said yesterday. "Everybody seems too busy mak-

William C. Linn on Trial, Charged with Stealing from a Railroad Company.

William C. Linn, an employe of the Big carloads of coal, several hundred bushels of wheat and a number of car doors from the railroad company, was on trial yesterday afternoon in Police Court before Judge Stubbs. The testimony was not concluded and Judge Stubbs postponed the case until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

After the case was called more than thirty witnesses were introduced who spoke well of Linn's character. One of the witnesses was a wholesale coal dealer, named Reynolds, who testified that Linn had purchased several cars of coal from him, saying he was going into the retail coal business this winter. Arthur Gillette, president of the Acme Milling Company, testified that he had bought considerable wheat from Linn. The latter, and several of his friends explained the possession of the wheat by saying a car was recently wrecked near the Belt and the wheat was spilled on the ground. About ten other men swept up the wheat and took it to their homes. the public treasury, and there can be no Later they sold it to different mills. Linn possibility of such a thing as a 'job' when admitted that he had a number of car doors at his home and said he obtained these from brakemen on passing trains. They threw them off and he got them to build stalls for his coal.

During the trial several witnesses were called who claimed they did not have a liking for either Mr. or Mrs. Linn. One woman in particular said that after the arrest she was so elated over the man's misfortune that she gave a reception at her home and invited the other women and men who did not like the Linns and the arrest was discussed by all at the recep-On the witness stand this woman undertook to tell Attorney Orton and Prosecutor Collins what questions they should ask her. Th railroad company is holding Linn's job open for him if he is acquitted.

EXTENSION IS NECESSARY

TECHNICAL INSTITUTE CANVASSERS NEED MORE TIME.

Request Will Be Made of the Wa Department-Subscriptions Now Aggregate $80,000.

An effort will be made at once by the promoters of the technical institute to ension of time in which to raise the amount necessary to purchase the arsenal grounds. The aid of Senator Fairbanks has been enlisted and he has assured the canvassers-George W. Brown and Albert Sahm-that he will do all in his power to convince Mr. Root that so worthy an enterprise should be assisted in every manner. Mr. Fairbanks is of the opinion that the secretary of war will grant the extension, which will be asked for ten days. Mr. Root will be at his desk at the War Department Sept. 15, and the request for more time will be laid before him almost as soon as the report of the army board which visited here.

"We have made up our minds," said George W. Brown last night, "that this project must not fail. We have raised nearly $80,000 so far, the amount being slightly more than $78,000, and I am convinced that the remaining $70,000 can be secured with in the next fifteen days. I don't think i could be raised by the 15th of the month and an extension of time on the part of the department will be necessary. I have talked to Senator Fairbanks, and he gives me every encouragement. He blieves that when the matter is presented to the attention of Mr. Root that he will not be averse to ordering the extension we wish. "We have some good things in sight. Several wealthy men have promised us that they intend doing something for the school, and while I do not know how much they are going to subscribe, they are not the kind of men who give pennies where dollars are necessary. At the same time, we have every hope that smaller subscriptions will begin to come in. In a number of factories and business houses the cashiers or bookkeepers have constituted themselves committees to boom the project and to collect subscriptions from employes. There are a good many people who always hold back to the last minute in a thing of this kind, and I believe that subscriptions will commence to roll in Yesterday was a good day for the canvassers. Nearly $3,000 was added to the fund, the principal contribution being from the Indianapolis Water Company, which gave $1,000. Joseph A. Rink gave $500, and the Daniel Stewart Drug Company $250. There were a number of smaller subscriptions that brought the total up to $3,000. "The project will not fail, said Mr. "I do not think that Indianapolis will let the school go by default after

Thomas E. Chandler, formerly senior member of the firm of Chandler & Taylor, owners of foundry and machine shops on West Washington street, died yesterday morning at 8 o'clock at his home, No. 518 West Vermont street. Death was the result of septicaemia, which developed its first symptoms about one year ago. Mr. Chandler was under the care of Dr. Kimberlin, who, after diagnosing his case, told his patient that he thought little could be done for him. Mr. Chandler thought it would be better to go East and consult a noted specialist. Accordingly, Dr. Kimberlin and his patent went to New York, and the same thing was told Mr. Chandler by the specialist. Mr. Chandler returned home about eight weeks ago. He was confined to ated. The capital stock is $10,000 and the dihis bed but ten days, and when the end

Mr. Chandler came West in 1859, going to Burlington, Ia., to take charge of a large rolling mill. He remained in Burlington but a short time and on his return home stopped off in Indianapolis. Here he accepted the position of superintendent of the Indianapolis rolling mill.

While holding this position he formed a partnership with Charles R. Wiggins, of that firm, and the new company, known as Chandler & Wiggins, formed what is now the Chandler & Taylor Company. The new firm made a specialty of manufacturing agricultural machinery. Mr. Chandler continued to serve as superintendent of the rolling mill while connected with the foundry on West Washington street. He bought Chandler did not receive the financial encouragement that should have been accorded. Several other men connected with the rolling mill took charge of the patent and made fortunes out of it. Politically Mr. Chandler was a Republican and was a man strong in his party. During the seventies he was a member of the City Council and was president of the hospital board. In 1888, during the first Harrison campaign, he defeated Sid Conger for the Republican nomination for Congress for the old Seventh district, which was then composed of Marion, Hancock and Shelby counties.

Although Mr. Chandler ran ahead of his ticket he was defeated by W. D. Bynum. Mr. Chandler retired from political life in 1890 and from business life in 1897. He devoted his last years to his farming interests in Marion and Hendricks counties. He was married in Pennsylvania Oct. 13, 852, and his wife, Mrs. Lucetta Chandler, and five children, all grown, survive him. The only other death that has occurred in the family was that of a daughter, Mrs. Lew M. Cooper, who died last April. The surviving children are Mrs. Henry G. Werbe, Miss Sarah Chandler, Mrs. Mart T. Ohr, Mrs. Albert G. Ovens, of Columbus, O., and George M. Chandler.

THE PROMOTERS ENCOURAGED BE-YOND THEIR EXPECTATIONS.

Manager Mills Writes that He Has Secured Some of the Best Entries to Be Had in the Country.

The progress being made with the Indianapolis horse show, which will be held Oct. 13 to 18, encourages the committee and the management in the expectation that this feature will be one of the biggest social functions the city has ever had. Society, which is quick to recognize its opportunities, has shown that it is interested in the event by the liberal purchase of boxes and tickets, and in this respect the committee is far beyond its expectations. The provisions for the cleanliness and comfort of the visitors are abundant and in addition attractive decorations will invite the largest turnout of fashion in many years.

The horse show committee, because of the interest manifested, has increased the prize list so as to insure the entrance of many of the largest stables in the country. The quality of the horses and vehicles to be shown will be high. Manager Mills writes from Des Moines that he has been able to secure some of the most successful exhibitors of the West. Among them are A. E. Ashbrook, of Kansecure from the secretary of war an ex- sas City, who will enter twenty-five horses, including his famous four-in-hand team. George E. Palmer, of Denver, will enter the same number and also a four-in-hand. These men have the best horses and equipages, and their rivalry is conducive to the most interesting exhibitions in the classes in which they compete. Both are recognized as among the first whips of the country. Another exhibitor who will put in a four-in-hand is W. B. White, of Cleveland, who will also enter a unicorn team and a tandem pair. E. R. Simms, of Chicago, another exhibitor, will bring his famous horses Limestone Belle, Columbus, King Crow and other noted high school and gaited saddle horses. Other exhibitors will be Herbert J. Krum, of Pontiac, Ill., who has many high school gaited and saddle horses; Thomas Bass, of Mexico, Mo., and W. E. Tipton, of Keno-

PEPPER'S HIGH JUMPERS. George Pepper, of Toronto, will enter sixteen high jumpers and harness horses. The Pepper stable has won every prize it competed for this year and the performances of the horses in it are regarded as truly marvelous. There is not a jumper in the group that cannot scale a seven-foot fence with a rider. Mr. Mills is also negotiating with A Montgomery Ward, M. H. Tichenor, W. H. Dupee and P. A. Valentine, of Chicago, for their stables and he expects entries from the stables of H. P. Crane, of St. Charles, III., and August Busch and George Watson, of St. Louis. Manager Mills will secure most of the best horses that exhibited at the Des Moines show-one of the biggest in the West-and he will also visit Louisville the week preceding the Indianapolis show to secure other entries. The Louisville show is well established and is patronized by the whole country. The proportions which the Indianapolis show is assuming are setting its promoters to thinking of the establishment of a permanent horse show association, amply financed, so that a suitable auditorium may be built to accommodate future shows and also be of service for other purposes. The need of such a building in Indianapoli has been felt for some years and the necessities of the present shorse show are stimulating the enterprise. Of course such building will require a large area of ground | ing the best. We buy in large lots for and a large investment of money, but President Bliss, of the Festival Association, says if this fall horse show is the success it gives promise of being, there will be little hesitancy about proceeding with the auditorium project.

Charged with Stealing Wheat. J. M. Armstrong yesterday morning made affidavit against William C. Richey, a negro in his employ, alleging that he had stolen about $40 worth of seed wheat from his barn on West Tenth street, west of the city. The warrant was placed in the hands of Detectives Kinney, Splan and Haley, who made the rounds of all the mills in this city, but without finding any trace of Richey. At noon Splan and Haley drove to Schofield's mill, east of the fair grounds, where they saw Richey trying to dispose of the wheat. He was brought back to town and charged with burglary and grand larceny. Armstrong said Richey stole the wheat from his barn on Tuesday night. Richey lives at 226 Archer street.

"I have not bought the Miller block," said Mr. McGowan. "The site to be chosen for this terminal station will be chosen only after the most careful consideration of all the sites presented. This terminal scheme is one that extends into the future too far to be jumped at. I shall be very deliberate in the selection of the large area of land that will be needed. Mr. McGowan said the Terminal Company's projects would be advanced as raplosy as was consistent with prudence.
